Fund a transition

True Regenerative · For brands, retailers, industry, impact funds and sponsors

Farmers want to regenerate their soil, but their margins cannot carry the cost of change. The answer is not for the farmer to pay more: it is for whoever buys their produce to fund the transition.

WHAT THE COMPANY FUNDS

On its supplier farms:

1. Diagnosis: soil, water, management and priorities.
2. Biofactory: bokashi, fermented biofertilisers, charged biochar and compost, made with local materials.
3. Training for the farm team, so they can run it on their own.
4. Measurement: lab analyses, chromatography and field indicators.

WHAT IT GETS

Regenerative origin	Named farms with location, plan and documented follow-up.
Verifiable measurement	Field evidence and soil data (MRV) every season.
Stories from real farms	Stories, photos and farm visits, with communication agreed with each farm.

We are not an official certifier; if a label is needed, we work with certifiers.

HOW A PILOT WORKS

1) Diagnosis of 2–3 supplier farms · 2) Transition plan · 3) Biofactory and training · 4) Measurement and reporting · 5) Results dossier and story. Scope, duration and price are set after the diagnosis: we do not publish rates.

REAL CASES

- Tugas Pagès (Viladecans) · community biofactory, soil and biodiversity.
- Vilaeco (Gavà) · flower strips, crop residues, fertility.
- Huerta de Tormantos (La Rioja) · biofactory, bokashi, keyline.
- EcoCastells (Delta de l’Ebre) · organic rice with ducks.
- Regenerativa Velsam (Arnes) · olive, almond and rotational grazing.
- L’Horta de Carme (Camarles) · soil regeneration in greenhouses.

WAYS TO COLLABORATE

- Sponsor a farm: months of support for a farmer in transition.
- Co-fund your suppliers: a pilot on the farms that supply you.
- Sponsor the school: grants, field days and materials.
- Content and farm visits: real stories for your team and your customers.

Timeline: programmes start in the 2027 season.
